THE LIQUOR PLEBISCITE AND THE TRANSFERABLE VOTE

Issued by Authority of the Alberta Government.

For the first time in Alberta, the preferential ballot, or in other words, the transferable vote system, is to be used in a province-wide election, on the occasion of the referendum on the liquor question on Monday, November 5.

As is well known, there are four questions on the ballot paper. The voter must not use the X mark, but should place the figure 1 opposite the proposal he wishes to become law. Then he should place the figure 2 opposite his second choice, the figure 3 opposite his third choice, and so on. Though voters are entitled to "plump" for one question, or to vote less than the full number of choices. The government urged them to vote their full number of choices. Only in this way can the voters obtain the full value of their ballots, and the government obtain a full expression of opinion.

The following statement is given as an explanation of the use of the transferable vote:

The keystone to our system of government is "The Will of the Majority shall Govern." How shall the will of the majority of the electors be ascertained? By their preferences expressed by their votes.

Where there are only two questions before the electors, it is an easy matter to get a clear majority decision by the use of the X vote method. If every elector has to vote for one of two questions, he has but one choice, and when the votes are counted, one or the other of the questions will be likely to have over one-half of the total votes cast and will be declared carried, as expressing the will of the majority which all must submit to.

The present method of marking the ballot with an X is adequate for the purpose of showing the voter's choice out of two only. Any other mark, letter or figure would answer the purpose equally well. So long as the votes cast at an election can be assembled in two piles, one or the other is almost certain to contain more than one-half of all the votes cast, and the will of the majority is thus ascertained.

Trouble arises with the X method of voting when there are more than two questions before the electors, with one question to be carried and no question receives a clear majority of all the votes cast. If the electors have to make a choice out of three questions, there will be three piles of ballots. If one of them contains more than the other two, that is more than half of the total votes cast, the will of the majority is clearly ascertained, and the object of the election has been attained. But if the votes are about equally divided among the three questions and no question has a majority of all the votes cast, the election has failed to disclose the will of the majority.

If all the electors were called to gather into one large hall to decide by the three questions and no question has a majority of all the votes cast, the election has failed to disclose the will of the majority.

On the first vote each elector would hold up his hand for his first choice. The result would probably be that no question would have a clear majority of all the votes cast. But one of the questions would be at most certain to have fewer first choices than either of the others.

The chairman of the meeting would declare this question defeated, leaving only two in the running. A show of hands would next be called for between the two remaining questions. Now the electors who had as their first choice the defeated question would still have a right to vote for their choice of the remaining two. The result would be two piles of ballots with a clear majority for one of the questions.

The same result could be obtained by holding two elections under the X vote method. At the first election each elector would vote for his choice of the three; at the second election the question receiving the fewest votes in the first election would be dropped and all the voters would be given a chance to vote for their choice of the remaining two, thus giving one or the other the necessary majority.

Such a method would be very cumbersome and too costly to adopt, for a dozen consecutive elections might be necessary to select a winner where the questions were sufficiently numerous. Moreover, the same result can be obtained in a very simple and inexpensive manner. Note what the electors did in the two elections referred to.

In the first they voted their choices, that is their first choice. In the second election those who had voted their first choices for the defeated question, voted their second choices for one of the two remaining questions, and their ballots went into one or other of the two piles and took part in the final result in expressing the will of the majority.

Now this result can be secured by each elector marking his first choice 1, his second choice 2, and so on for the number of questions, and having the consecutive elections all over at once, so far as his part is concerned. The official who counts the votes does the rest, according to the instructions given on the ballot. If the elector's first preference question is dropped as having fewest votes, his second preference shows which of the remaining questions he desires his ballot counted for. If his second preference question is dropped, his third preference shows what one of the then remaining questions he desires his ballot counted for. The counting official keeps transferring the ballots from one pile to another as indicated until there are only two piles left, one of which is almost certain to contain more than half of all the votes cast, and thus the expressed will of the majority.

At the coming plebiscite there are four questions and each elector is urged to mark his preference to the limit. The exercise of choice develops intelligence, knowledge and judgment, and as this form of ballot is likely to come into general use the sooner the elector learns to use his right to vote to its fullest extent the better it will be for the elector and for the country.

BISHOPRIC-SOWDEN

(Edmonton Bulletin)

A pretty autumn wedding was solemnized on Wednesday, October 17, at nine o'clock in the evening, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lee, 1095 13th Street, when Mrs. Maud Sowden, only daughter of Mrs. J. D. Fenton, became the bride of Charles Francis Otis Bishopric, youngest son of Oscar Bishopric of Edmonton.

The ceremony was performed before an improvised altar, the fireplace being banked with ferns, palms and potted plants and mauve and pink asters. A color scheme of mauve and pink was carried out in the floral decorations in the drawing room, baskets of asters and daisies having large blue bows in these colors.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her step-father, Mr. J. D. Fenton, was statily in a gown of cream panne velvet, the side draping held in place by a large pearl and beaded crescent-shaped ornament with long pearl and white bead fringe. The court train, which was suspended from the shoulders with bands of silver ribbon, was lined with pale pink georgette crepe shirred at the under edges. Her veil of net, which was worn coronet style, was enriched with a lover's knot of silver ribbon in one corner. Two bands of net, edged with seed pearls, held it in place across the forehead; the orange-blossom wreath, mellowed with age, having been in the bride's family for about thirty years. She carried a shower bouquet of Opheelia roses tied with chifferlin in pale matching shades.

Her only attendant was Mrs. Victor Horner, who as matron of honor wore a handsome gown of pale green georgette with silver lace garnitures, and a black picture hat. She carried pink and mauve asters tied with mauve chiffon.

Mr. Frank Bishopric, brother of the groom, officiated as best man.

The wedding march was played by Mr. W. Stillman, and during the signing of the register Miss Mabel Collins sang most charmingly "Blossome."

The ceremony was witnessed by about thirty relatives and intimate friends, who afterwards showered the young couple with felicitations and best wishes for future happiness. Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Fenton and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lee received with the bride's party.

Mrs. Fenton was stylishly gowned in black velvet with effective touches of white georgette. Her corsage was of roses. Mrs. Robert Lee wore a becoming gown of black sequins and corsage of roses.

The table was covered with a large Battenburg lace tablecloth and centred with the three-tier bride's cake, which was wreathed in pink and mauve tulle. At two corners were pink candles in silver candlesticks and at the opposite corners pink and mauve asters in silver vases. A white wedding bell was suspended from the chandelier from which hung white satin ribbon streamers draped at each corner, where they were held in place with a ribbon bow with daisies tied in.

A buffet supper was served, with Mrs. W. McCrory, of Calgary; Mrs. Edith McDougall and Miss F. McBride assisting.

The gift of the bridegroom to the bride was a pair of real pearl earrings; to the matron of honor, a white gold bar pin set with sapphires; to Miss Collins, a sterling silver bracelet; to the best man, a fitted week-end travelling case; to Mr. Stillman, a black leather tobacco pouch.

The wedding gifts were very beautiful and included a lovely tray of silver from the fellow workers of the bride in the audit department of the provincial government.

The honeymoon will be spent at southern points, the bride travelling in a navy blue tricotone coat-dress embroidered in blue and gold, with travelling coat, white fox fur and black panne velvet picture hat.

Mr. and Mrs. Bishopric will make their home in Edmonton.

Miss Sowden and her mother, Mrs. Fenton, will be well remembered by the Red Deer people, especially by the railway friends. She was in the

AN EDITOR'S FIRST DUTY

The two purposes of a country newspaper are to make money and to serve the community. Making money is put first, for that paper that is not making money cannot serve the community. It is bound to be a poor, down-at-the-heels affair. You owe it to your community to make your paper make money.—The Service Sheet, Cornell University.

OUR PULPWOOD

It is common knowledge that the pulp and paper interests of the United States are keeping up their profits, saving their own timber supplies and destroying Canada's forests, while they laugh up their sleeve at the simple government they have to deal with on this side of the line. Of course you will say that the present government have a Royal Commission to investigate—and in due course, no doubt they will investigate—and find out facts that were already known by everyone. It is a fine way the government at Ottawa has developed, to make a commission on every occasion. The people pay for it, and it allows a minister to hold down his job even if he knows nothing of his duties.

Recently, the United States interests, at a meeting at New York, raised a huge sum for propaganda in Canada, designed to prevent the going into effect of the embargo on pulpwood. They do not wish to have to come to Canada, to establish mills here, to employ Canadian labor, or to add to the Dominion's revenue. We cannot blame them for not wanting to do any of these things. It would presumably cut down their profits to do them. And if further time is wasted by the appointment of useless commissions by the Liberal government at Ottawa, while the selfsame interests are straining every nerve to get all available pulpwood out of Canada, the newspapers of Canada will be sooner or later at the mercy of United States interests.

THE EDITORIAL COLUMN

In former days, when every paper leaned either to one side or the other in politics, every paper had a regular editorial column in which the editor expressed his prophecy, or hope, or whatever it might be called, that the opposite party and all its hiliings might go to everlasting perdition. Lately, very few papers in the Province, outside of the dailies, have an editorial column of any description. It entails a great deal of time and thought that might otherwise be spent in amassing wealth. In the same time that an editorial might be written, several hundred blotters might be printed and distributed telling the recipients that the paper is the best yet. And if an editorial column is necessary to keep equal with rivals, then the editors and paste pot are much quicker.

The question has been discussed at length in Washington newspapers and journals and the general opinion seems to be that if an editorial column is run and the editor has no ideas to express, then the people are glad to read them and, reading them, will be influenced by them.

Of course, the real reason why we run an editorial column is the same that we run any other feature: we hope that it will interest people so that they will be glad to buy the paper in increasing numbers and we will get more advertisers at an increased rate as a result. But back of it all is the difference in opinion as to the best way to get these results. We have thought, and still think, that the people are well enough educated and have enough common sense that if a paper is better they will use it. They will not need to be told by us that we knock spots off all our competitors.

YES, THEY READ

ADVERTISEMENTS

In a recent report published in Editor and Publisher from the evidence as obtained by the Des Moines Advertising Club, it is shown that ninety-four percent of newspaper readers read advertisements and eighty-eight percent have faith in their truthfulness. These returns were received on a questionnaire answered by 600 shoppers at Des Moines.

Eighty-six percent of those who replied thought newspaper advertising was the most effective. Truthfulness and clearness are the most appealing elements in an advertisement, attractiveness next, and the opportunity for saving money third, was shown according to the answers. The departments of their interest to the reader, were indicated thus: Local news, national news, editorial, advertisements, personal or society news, comics and sports. Women represented two-thirds of those who filled out the questionnaires.

CENTRALIZATION WITH A VENGEANCE

We understand that through a recent order of the department of railways and telephones a change has been made with regard to the collection of toll charges on the long distance telephone. Up to this time the local office has rendered the accounts at the end of each month and sent out the receipts after payment. As most of the customers were local the envelopes would require a two-cent stamp only.

Under the new order when calls are charged up they are the same night sent in a list to Calgary—three cents postage—then at the end of the month the Calgary office renders the accounts—six cents gone—and sends out receipts. As against postal charges of four cents under the old system there are now postal charges of nine cents. The loss to the government under the brilliant centralizing operations of the department must be several hundred dollars. And the City of Red Deer postal returns are reduced by the cost of the stamps.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Up in Spirit River they had a two-hour snowstorm last Wednesday, Oct. 17th, with one-third of the grain yet to be threshed. That is a thing that might happen here any time now. We hope, however, that the farmers will have fine weather up to Christmas, then it may be possible that the last sheaf will have passed through the threshers and the crop saved.

Creamery butter made in Alberta took a total of 149 prizes out of 236 prizes offered, or 63 percent, at exhibitions at Edmonton, Calgary, Regina, Brandon, Saskatoon and Vancouver this year. Out of 11 open championship offers, Alberta butter took 8. In the Calgary exhibition six provinces competed, in three others four provinces competed, and in two others three provinces competed.

In one of the Southern States, where cotton growing is the chief occupation, 20 percent of the farms are not producing a single egg. 37 percent are not raising poultry at all, and 36 percent have not a single dairy cow. In another state, well adapted to the poultry industry, the annual importation of poultry products amounted to $19,000,000. In still another state located 1,000 farms boasted of only 70 dairy cows.

The census figures of 1921 published this spring show that in the last decade the percentage of people of British racial origin in Canada increased from 64.08 in 1911 to 65.40 in 1921. In 1921 the racial percentages were as follows: English, 28.96; Scotch, 13.36; Irish, 12.50; French, 27.91; other European races, 5.59. Asiatics numbered less than one percent of the whole. In 1921 residents in Canada of British racial origin numbered 4,869,189; in 1911 they were 3,896,985; in 1901, 3,063,189.

The Judicial Committee of the Privy Council have rendered their decision in the struggle between the Honorable Mr. Justice Harvey and the Honorable Mr. Justice Scott in favor of the latter, who is from this time on entitled to be called Chief Justice of the Province. It has been generally felt throughout the Province that Scott should have had the appointment of Chief Justice, years ago when it was given to Harvey, a younger and less experienced Judge, and, especially among the members of the bar, there will be a general feeling of satisfaction that what has happened has happened.

Later threshing returns confirm the reports of huge yields of grain throughout the Province. In the greater part of the Province the grade is good, wheat going several pounds over normal weight. Unfortunately in the immediate Red Deer district the frost on July 31 and August 1 did some damage and the wheat is not No. 1. But one cannot honestly complain very bitterly over the quality being slightly poorer when the quantity is so much more than usual.

Those opposing church union at a recent meeting at Edmonton advanced the following main arguments why there should not be passed the proposed bill: If passed more police will be needed to enforce it, and it will not be obeyed because it would be coercive; it is a threat to civil liberty; the soldiers in France had had no opportunity to vote on the union question; it was being rushed through by a few without the general support of the people. Every one of these arguments have been from time to time advanced by the moderateists in the liquor fight and with equal right. Personally we are dead against passing laws to force other people to shelve their own lives and live ours.

It does not seem to us possible that any serious attempts are made by the United States police to prevent thieves and desperadoes escaping to that

INSTRUCTIONS TO VOTERS

The Voter MUST NOT use the X mark. He should mark the figure 1 opposite the question he wishes to become law. He should then mark the figure 2 opposite the question he would select as second choice, the figure 3 opposite his third choice, the figure 4 opposite his fourth choice. He must make no other mark on the ballot. The voter may "plump" for one question alone, using the figure 1, without spoiling his ballot, or he may vote for only two or only three choices.

Voters are urged, however, to vote the full extent of their four choices. There is always the possibility that the question of his first choice will not carry. In that case he should have a second choice, and a third choice and a fourth choice. Only by marking the full number of choices does the voter obtain the full benefit of the preferential ballot, and the government obtain a complete expression of the opinion of the people.

DAVID LLOYD GEORGE'S MESSAGE OF PRIDE

Winnipeg, October 14.—David Lloyd George, in his last Canadian address, gave to the Canadian people a message of pride in the country's past and confidence in her future. Addressing five thousand people here Saturday night in the Olympic rink, the man who guided the empire's destiny through the war's crucial years aroused his audience to heights of enthusiasm as eloquently he spoke of the achievements in France and Flanders of the Canadian army, and of what the dominion and the empire should expect to accomplish in the future.

"You have a land," he said, "that develops the manliest qualities. Canada is not a soft job for anyone, and men who look for soft jobs in life are fit only for soft jobs. You have a land that rewards labor adequately—handsomely. Required to it develops virility in a race. That is what Canada gives her sons."

Thanked for Welcome

Mr. Lloyd George said in opening that he wanted to thank the people of Canada in his last address in the dominion for the warmth and kindness with which they had received him, his wife, and his daughter, and he regretted deeply that he could not go farther west. Winnipeg and Manitoba had developed enormously since his previous visit 24 years ago. "You have in Canada," he went on, "a country of vast treasure and resource. You are just on the threshold of your greatness. When you think that at the beginning of the last century the United States had a little more than one-half of the population you have today and probably not more than one-tenth of your wealth of today, you see some indication of your possibilities. The only country in Europe which I could take as a comparison would be Scotland, and on the basis of Scotland Canada is capable of maintaining a sturdy population of six hundred million people.

An Unusual Opportunity

"You have an opportunity in Europe such as probably no new country has received in cycles. The United States had its great opportunity in Europe through the Napoleonic wars. The same conditions prevail in Europe today, even to a greater degree. The war was the most terrible ever waged in this world. There will be millions of people looking towards the west—the land of hope, the land of abundance, the land of assured peace—as a home for themselves and their children's children. It depends upon Canada whether she makes as good use of these conditions in Europe as the United States did a century ago.

1914 Was Testing Time

"We know something in Europe today of the quality of the men you turn out. So do our foes. The trouble in 1914 tested many a people and came as a test for you—gallantly did your young men stand it. There were no provinces in the empire more loyal than the prairie provinces of Canada. You turned out tens of thousands of gallant men to aid the empire in her danger, to fight under the banner of liberty in the battlefields of Europe, and your very distance from the struggle made the response the more remarkable.

"As a Britisher with some responsibility for the direction of the war, it occurs to me that there was no desire we could have issued from Downing street which could have raised a single squadron of infantry in Canada. What you did was of your own free will and impulse inspired by your own loyalty. Our Empire was founded on equality, and when the call came you decided to aid the cause of equality with 400,000 of your picked men. This, I think, was one of the most remarkable things in the history of the world, and a triumph for free government. The achievements of Canada will live as long as Canada lives.

Great Future for Empire

"There is a great future for the British empire, just as it has a great past. It has a record of great achievement for humanity. Four times it has saved the liberties of Europe. But its greatness is only beginning. In the empire we have every variety of climate and every resource of wealth and riches. Presently one of our country may have a number of great, sturdy, giant sons—but it will still be the same old country, a small which you could put in to Lake Ontario. But there are things you never could submerge—the splendor of her great literature, the grandeur of her traditions, the story of how through the ages she fought and bled and suffered for the freedom of speech and institutions and international right. No, the land will live forever and the young nations who are creating traditions—these powerful, virile young peoples—and the aged old land will work together for the empire, for the millions under the old flag for human right and liberty, to raise mankind to a higher level."

Speaks to Second Audience

Proceeding immediately to the board of trade building, Mr. Lloyd George addressed a second audience of 3,000 people, along a similar line of thought. "You have in Canada a great heritage," he said. "Be worthy of it, and with the traditions you have and the quality of your people this dominion will write its name deeply in the story of the human race, and generations of men will thank God that Canada stood by the flag of liberty."

OLDS SCHOOL OF AGRICULTURE TO OPEN FOR THE TENTH YEAR

On October 30th, the O. S. A. will open to receive students for the tenth year. Prospects for a good attendance are very favorable. Already one hundred applications for enrollment have been received and more are coming in daily. Another fifty or more students could well be accommodated this winter.

The courses in Agriculture and Domestic science, respectively, are of a very practical nature and the information given is the result of many years of scientific investigation, and practical experience with problems in the home and on the farm. The courses are valuable and interesting to both young and old women and men.

Dormitory accommodation in a modern home under the school management is provided for women at $25.00 per month. The men students are provided with accommodation in homes in the town at a cost ranging from $25.00 to $30.00 per month. Students are under the school discipline at all times while at the O. S. A. Ambitious men and women cannot do better than to spend the five winter months at the O. S. A. furthering their education and thus better fitting themselves for their future life.

To keep up with the times and to make the most money from the farm one should know how to farm in accordance with the most improved methods. You can learn these methods at the Olds School of Agriculture.

PREMIER KING IS GUEST OF HONOR AT LONDON BANQUET

London, October 19.—"We believe," declared Premier Mackenzie King last night at a banquet given in his honor by the Canada club, "the British empire is a community of free states. It is a community in which we have interests in common, and we believe that if the honor, integrity or common interests of that community are attacked, every part and portion of the empire may be expected to rise and act as one. We believe also that in this community of nations, as you give expression to the national life of the different parts of the empire, you give expression to the national life of the whole. We believe that the different parts of the empire are so united that the authority and full right which goes with the growth of nationhood, so you will help to instill, not only a feeling of greater pride in their own countries, but greater confidence in the empire to which they belong."

The large dining room of the Savoy was crowded for the occasion. Hon. P. C. Larkin, Canadian high commissioner in London, presided, and referred to Premier King as having shown his worthiness for the high place he filled with honor to himself and with credit to his country.

Notables Present
The Duke of Devonshire, who likewise spoke, also had a word of welcome for the Canadian Premier. The Duke of Devonshire expressed the profound hope that the imperial conference would make some material contribution towards the solution of the problems which are pressing with such severity upon a world war-weary to distraction.

Premier King referred to the recent gifts to the Canadian archives of Lord Durham and Lord Moncton papers. He sketched the early Canadian history and recent developments in the dominion, observing that the Durham papers throw such valuable light on some phases of Canadian history that a large part has been rewritten. Premier King referred to the amicable relations between the different races and religions in Canada as offering an example to the rest of the world of live-and-let-live, forgive-and-forget. "In this old world particularly in the continent of Europe," he continued, "there still remains an amount of suspicion, hatred and revenge to which the countries of the new world gladly contribute if they could to help remove."

Getting Back to Normal
The premier believed that in matters of trade Canada was getting back to her normal state. She had turned the corner. For a time following the war conditions in Canada were very serious. There had been a great deal of unemployment and the government was now increasing. Production was greater than it had been for a long time. Canada held great opportunities for investment, and was ready to welcome all those from the British Isles who were willing to take their places on the farms.

Referring to the halibut treaty between the United States and Canada, Premier King argued that it was of concern only to those two countries. In having it signed by the Canadian minister of fisheries there had not been the slightest intention to show any discourtesy to the British ambassador at Washington, but, added Mr. King, "we feel that so far as domestic affairs are concerned we have full right to self government. We feel that as regards matters of trade and tariff we have the right to negotiate with our neighbors or with any country."

Does Not Injure Prestige
"It did not take away from the prestige of the British crown that a Canadian minister should have authority from the crown to sign with plen-potentially powers on a matter that related exclusively to his own country. Where, however, other parts of the empire were involved, Mr. King agreed that no one part should take any steps without the full concurrence of all. And where the matter was one of high politics it would be adding to the prestige of the empire to see that the signature was representative of the empire as a whole.

Hon. George P. Graham submitted three points to his hearers, first that Canada is perfectly contented as a member of the British organization, realizing that in such a membership her people enjoy an ever broadening freedom; second, that the wider the freedom the more closely are the links welded together, and third, that the most lasting good, that could come to the British community of nations would be the development of the outposts to their fullest potentialities.

Mr. and Mrs. Anderson will be very greatly missed in the community, as they have always been ready to help in every phase of community life as well as in the Sunday School and church.

Mr. Anderson's musical ability will be especially missed, and a substantial gift was presented in the course of the evening as a slight token of appreciation. Mr. and Mrs. Anderson have been in Haynes four years, and are leaving a host of friends to wish them luck in their new home.

MANY BRITISH GIRLS WILL COME TO CANADA

Irrespective of their previous occupations, many of them being teachers, private secretaries, stenographers, and some even of gentle birth, hundreds of British girls are preparing themselves to come to Canada as domestics next year.

Hon. Mrs. Mary Ellen Smith, M.L.A., Vancouver, returned from her recent visit to Great Britain, where she had been investigating general immigration possibilities on behalf of the Canadian government.

Mrs. Smith stated that schools in housekeeping and household crafts have been organized throughout the country, and are being attended by possible girl emigrants to Canada. Other girls are studying poultry farming and truck gardening, with the object of coming out to Canada as agriculturists.

Influx Predicted
Mrs. Smith predicts a very heavy influx of British immigrants, mainly of the agricultural class, early next spring. Many of these will have sufficient capital to settle down unassisted. Many others, however, although they have been equipping themselves to take up farming here, hope to come out under the Canadian government nomination passage scheme under the Imperial immigration scheme. It is generally hoped in Great Britain that the present effort will produce a larger supply for Imperial immigration that will enable more extensive immigration to Canada.

In the farming countries of northern Europe, keen interest in the possibilities of Canada is shown by the number of letters she received. Mrs. Smith stated. These countries are sending advance agents to locate suitable tracts of land in Canada where they can form communities.

Mrs. Smith is submitting her report to Hon. J. A. Robb, minister of immigration, and expects to leave for the west today.

CANADIANS TAXED $50,000.00 AN HOUR

Other Countries Are Lowering Taxation and Lessening Debt--Ours Increases.

The pressure on the people of the heavy taxes levied by municipal, provincial and federal administrations will not down. The Kingston Standard says:

"We wonder how many Canadians are aware that they are paying taxes at the rate of over $50,000 an hour. That is, if you add up all the taxes that are levied on the Canadian people, and work that out and it will be found to be about $50,000,000 a year. It is a huge burden for Canadians to bear, and it is due in a large measure to extravagance and want of economy. The bad feature about it is that while taxes are being levied, the government is not doing anything to reduce them, but is increasing them. The Canadian Ministers attending the Imperial Conference will learn that, though during the first year after the war Great Britain's expenditure was $10,000,000,000, it has now been reduced to $4,000,000,000, in spite of a reduction in taxation. One way in which this has been brought about has been in reducing the expenditure of the Civil Service to almost the level they were before the war. The sort of story can be told about Australia, New Zealand, France and the United States. These are facts which Canadians should bear in mind, and take the first opportunity in consequence of turning out of office a government which these other countries show is incapable and untrustworthy."

DEATH OF REV. G. MCKAY

The news of the death of Wednesday afternoon at the Red Deer Memorial Hospital of Rev. G. McKay, a member of the Presbyterian church of the Valley Centre and Cumberland, came as a shock to the whole east district.

Mr. McKay came from Scotland when a young man to Nova Scotia, where he took his theological course at Fitch Hill college. He was preaching in Pictou county, Nova Scotia, 36 years ago, and has spent twenty years in the ministry in the West, holding two charges in Manitoba, one in Saskatchewan and one in Alberta; he had been here about four years.

He was unmarried, and word to any of his kin had not been received up to Thursday night. His funeral is set for Monday at 1:30, from Knox church in Red Deer, to the Red Deer Cemetery.

Who Is "The Wonderful Heroine?"
The amazing life story of "The Wonderful Heroine" in the Family Herald and Weekly Star of Montreal, is creating intense interest in every part of Canada. "The Wonderful Heroine" is a young and lovely woman of tragic history whose picture in colors is being given free to subscribers of the Family Herald and Weekly Star. A subscription of two dollars is little enough to pay for a whole year's subscription to this greatest of all farm and family journals, and with a magnificent picture thrown in, the value is superlative.

"WHY WORRY" AIMS HIGHER THAN PREVIOUS LLOYD COMEDY SUCCESSES

How can Harold Lloyd keep up the pace? That is a question that has puzzled people inside the motion picture industry as well as the millions of followers Lloyd has won by his clean, wholesome comedy on the screen.

Nevertheless, he has in "Why Worry?" a six-reel farce which will be shown at the Rex Theatre, Monday and Tuesday.

"Why Worry?" will win many new friends for Lloyd. It is going to prove that Harold cannot set a pace too fast for himself. Each picture he makes it becomes more difficult, of course, for him to equal his predecessor, but by a great effort he always does.

A Powerful, Beautiful Story

REX THEATRE FRIDAY-SATURDAY

Is it possible for man to lead the life of Christ in modern society, in the turmoil and strife of our complex civilization, assailed by a thousand overpowering temptations? John Storm had to choose between a life devoted to religion and his irresistible passion for the famous beauty that loved him. At last the gripping love drama of all time comes to the screen.

78th BATTERY CANADIAN FIELD ARTILLERY

Issue of Uniform—

Uniforms will be issued each night on application to the quartermaster at the main Armories, and must be signed for in clothing ledger.

Regimental Dance—

The attention of all ranks is again called to the necessity of "dressing" uniform before the Regimental dance. As it is a regimental affair, it should be a point of honour for every member to appear in uniform, and to be as smart and soldierlike as possible, and thus enhance the success of the dance.

78th BATTERY REGIMENTAL BALL

HALLOWEEN, OCTOBER 31st.

The "Gunners" invite everybody to have a good time with them on Halloween, the night when Spooks and Goblins and Witches are abroad, and they will be sure to look in at the dance and make things lively.

Mr. Jiggs and Dinky Moore and the bunch will be there. We hope Maggie won't turn up and spoil their fun.

Don't wait for a personal invitation. None are being sent out, as some people were accidentally overlooked last year, and were offended. The "Gunners" want everybody to come.
